NOTE

Submissions are to be representative of a single artist. The BAC will consider submissions from a group of artists only if there is a central thematic context in the group submission. The BAC reserves the right to be the sole judge as to whether a central thematic context exists in a group submission and its decision shall be final.

The Exhibition Committee reserves the right to combine the works of two artists in a single show if their works are deemed thematically, culturally visually, and/or intellectually complementary or in such significant contrast as to be intellectually stimulating to the viewer. BAC Board Members are ineligible to enter.

Art presented for display that departs substantially from the nature and character of the sample slides submitted for evaluation will be excluded from the exhibit at the sole discretion of the Exhibition Committee of the BAC.

Every reasonable precaution will be taken to assure the safety of submitted artwork. However, the Brookings Arts Council will not be responsible for loss or damage to artwork, however caused. Artists are responsible for insuring their own work.

The BAC reserves the right to use images submitted by successful applicants for publicity purposes. Should your work be accepted, the center receives a 25% commission on any works sold. Incomplete applications will not be accepted.
